Helpful Bunco for Breast Cancer Planning Tips!

☞ Start by setting a goal amount to earn through your Bunco fundraiser. Setting a goal amount can help you determine the amount of people you may need to invite. Decide how much you want to charge per person. Take your goal amount and divide it by your per person charge, to help get an idea of how many partakers to host your fundraiser.

☞ Next, get inventive with the support of your event and ticket sales. An idea, you could do is charge a $25 entry fee valid for entry to the game and include free appetizers, beverages, and a raffle ticket. Be sure to make extra raffle tickets to sell at the door.

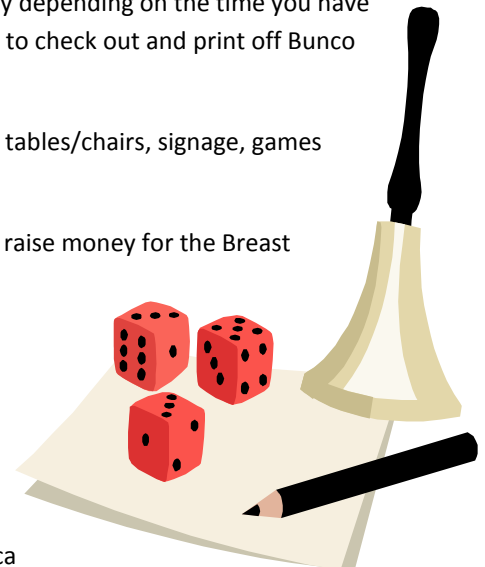

☞ Select a date and choose a large location in your house to play the game.

☞ Contact local businesses or your friends to donate prizes or supplies. Some nice prize ideas are spa gift certificates, gas cards, movie tickets, or gift baskets. You can also request cash donations to cover the cost of supplies.

☞ Aimlessly select 12 partakers to sit at 3 tables seating 4. Each group of 12 is its own pod. Allocate 1 person to be the pod hostess. This player will start and stop each round and keep the pod knowledgeable of what number the group is currently rolling. You can verify how many rounds each pod will play depending on the time you have selected for your Bunco fundraiser. Each pod plays their own game. Be sure to check out and print off Bunco rules. Enjoy your entertaining time with your friends and the game of dice!

☞ Checklist of items you will need food/appetizers, beverages, raffle tickets, tables/chairs, signage, games supplies, and prizes.

☞ Write thank you notes to all the participants, who helped your cause, and raise money for the Breast Cancer Charities of America.
